Abstract

Tarekat or tariqah is the Muslim spiritual path toward direct knowledge (ma'rifah) or ultimate truth (haqq) of God. This paper aims to describe the Sufism school teaching of Tarekat Rinjani in Besuki Village, Banyumas Regency. This research is also to reveal laku batiniyah and lahiriyah (spiritual and physical practices) of Tarekat Rinjani. Cultural anthropology research was conducted to achieve the objectives through participatory observation and in-depth interviews for collecting the data. Tarekat Rinjani is one of the local Javanese tarekat that existed within Javanese communities. In this tarekat, the members must carry out Laku Kendalisada ritual consisting of two parts; spiritual and physical practices, to reach the love of God. Spiritual practices were done by managing hearts, minds, and reciting wirid, while physical practices were done by loving the Republic of Indonesia, helping others regardless of religion, groups, and ethnics, and making spiritual journeys to places called as wingit. In conclusion, Tarekat Rinjani is classified as a ghairu mu’tabarah, which is not a well-recognized Sufi order.
based on Sharia and included in the creed of Sunni Islam, since it is typical of Banyumas Sufi-syncretic tarekat with non-mutashil sanad that is not directly connected to the Prophet Muhammad.

A. Introduction

The Javanese Muslim society in the rural area is closer to the teachings of Islamic mysticism or Sufism. It emphasizes more inner values or spirituality-inner mind than the formal side of religion, although they also accentuate the symbols in expressing their spirituality (Ricklefs, 2006, 2013; Suryo, 2009). In this context, the Islamization of rural Java was mostly done by Sufi scholars or at least scholars who were able to acculturate Islamic teachings, or else Islam would not become the Javanese religion that completely replaced the local religions and Hindu-Buddhist (Azra, 2002; Suryo, 2009).

Apart from the Sufi’s sophisticated preaching in conveying Islamic teachings that merged with the cultural frames, the readiness of the Javanese mindset and inner experience in matters of spirituality also became the factors to embrace Islam as their religion. One of the local Javanese religions is Kapitayan in which they believe in the supernatural powers that exist in the world in the form of objects, living things, or certain artifacts (Ghofur & Purnomo, 2021). They believed that they could bring either happiness or disaster to humans. Thus, in this context, humans must strive to make peace and build harmony with the world to satisfy these supernatural powers which ultimately leading to peace, harmony, and tranquility (Abdul, 2015). In maintaining this harmony, Javanese people used to carry out certain rituals within a certain period of time by giving offerings represented in distinctive symbols, which believed based on the Javanese experience as an effective means of establishing communication with these supernatural forces (Ricklefs, 2013; Sunyoto, 2012).

During the Islamization of Java, historians have a consensus that there was differences between the northern coast and the southern part of Java, or the rural area of Java which can be seen from the interaction of Javanese with international communities at that time (Setiadi, 2021). Islamization of coastal Java was spread faster because its open-minded and egalitarian local communities could receive the first phase of Sharia-centric Islamization, or the phase of Fiqh teaching in 1200-1400 AD (Wahyudhi, 2016). In addition, Islamization of rural areas in Java could only take place when Islamic mysticism began to influence the life of the rulers and poets during the second phase or the phase of Sufism around 1400-1700 AD (Suryo, 2009). This phase emerged when the rulers needed new legitimacy over their power and when the influence of the two previous great civilizations, Hinduism and Buddhism, had waned in the rural area of Java (Mukaffa, 2017). Then, the rulers of rural areas in Java, gradually and selectively, adopted the Islamic teachings and mysticism, or Sufism that can be seen as the most practical teaching for the Javanese people through their poets (Simuh, 2011). At that time, Islam was the only choice to form a new cosmopolitan civilization on the north coast of Java.
According to sanad from many local tarekat in southern Java, there are two well-known names; Sunan Kalijaga and Sultan Agung, who was considered to be the student of Sunan Kalijaga (Maziyah & Amaruli, 2020; Subekti, 2017). Sultan Agung’s mysticism was deeply rooted among the adherents of local tarekat in southern Java (Werdiningsih, 2015). In the book of Sastra Gending, Sultan Agung revealed that theology manifested in a unified whole between the three elements that form an equilateral triangle, with God at the peak and the other two equal points occupied by humans and the universe (Zaenuddin, 2017). God has absolute power over all creatures and human actions cannot be separated from God’s supervision; thus, He is the source of human action (amurba solahing ringgit). According to Sultan Agung, humans are classified into two groups: ahlu dzahir and ahlu batin. Ahlu dzahir refers to someone who can capture the nuances of the divine through outward aspects. On the other hand, ahlu batin refers to someone who can capture the nuances of divinity through spiritual experience. Sultan Agung argued that the two levels of people did not need to be disputed because they see various aspects from different perspectives (Kurnialoh, 2015; Werdiningsih & Andrian, 2020). It was also stated that humans who had enlightened were prophets, apostles, saints, fuqaha, and priests. Humans must seek integrated and intact knowledge physically and spiritually without distinguishing between the two (Ardani, 2011).

Sufism introduced by Sultan Agung is different from the Sufism teachings of Sheikh Siti Jenar. Sultan Agung combines the normative observance based on Islamic law and Sufism, emphasizing Sharia as the basis for Sufism (Werdiningsih & Andrian, 2020). Human happiness in the world and hereafter can only be obtained by consistently working on the Sharia, when interacting with God or other humans and nature. Sharia is the initial step for humans to reach the level of tarekat in the form of several maqamats (degree), from one level to a higher level (menggah tarekat kawruh mangerti, ngingin-ninginjen trusing kasampurnan). In the end, the highest level can be previously achieved through the essence (hakekat wus nunggalake); in this position, humans will reach the highest level called ma’rifat (makrifat trusing kawruh) (Ardani, 2011). Ma’rifat is the mystical intuitive knowledge of spiritual truth reached through ecstatic experiences, rather than revealed or rationally acquired (Fenn & Geertz, 1974)

The tradition of Sharia and Sufism developed by Sultan Agung initiated the tarekat tradition (popular mysticism), which has an essential role in forming unique local cultures as the dialectical results between orthodoxy and heterodoxy (Hidayat & Gaus, 2006). Sultan Agung’s Sufism also developed in the palace, especially during Pakubuwana II, and it was developed by a pious Sufi, Queen Pakubuwana (Ricklefs, 2013). This Sufism model is also believed to be the embryo of the Tarekat Akmaliyah from Java, which has a short sanad starting from Sultan Agung, Sunan Kalijaga, Nabi Khidr, Nabi Sys, Prophet Muhammad and tends to be different from other well-known tarekat (mu’tabarah) (Yanti, 2020). For that local Javanese tarekat taught by Sultan Agung, the name and the leader of the tarekat are not essential to be revealed to the public because the most important thing is the essence of laku lahir (Sharia/physical practices) and laku bathin (spiritual practices) as the teachings of Tarekat Akmaliyah.
Sufism offers a deep understanding of the supernatural by having an intimate relationship with God Almighty without intermediaries, shedding longing, fear, and hope. Sufism teaches moderation and tolerance, leading to the noble characters (al-Akhlak al-Karimah) that are not only applicable to the universe ruler and fellow human beings but also to the universe itself (Werdiningsih, 2017). Akhlak (moral) toward the Creator requires worship with total surrender as a servant, and akhlak towards the universe elicits an attitude of respect toward other creatures. In addition, Sufism offers a heart cleansing from all evil characters and fills the soul with praiseworthy characters that influence human social relations. Living in harmony with nature means that humans must have fraternized with nature and be able to analyze the natural phenomena, knowing when to use and rejuvenate or renew them. Sufism always offers to read the natural phenomena and take lessons from them, for instance, learning about the rotation of the earth, the appearance of the sun and celestial bodies, or the development of plants from seeds to become perfect trees. These teachings captured the hearts of some Javanese people to follow the school of Sufism (Mulyati, 2004; Noer, 2003; Sunyoto, 2012).

Furthermore, Hikmah Muta’aliyyah is a concept in Sufism that discusses the universe. This view states that “being” or an “entity” is a simple concept that can be understood directly without intermediaries with other concepts. Being is a manifestation of reality that its existence must recognize; an absolute being is a stratified reality that experiences continuous evolution in a substantial movement (Harakah al-Jawhariyyah). Substantial movements occur within the subject (spirit, soul, or mind) and object (digestible knowledge) framework, that is, the relationship between spirit, soul, or mind and the object. The growth of the human spirit is determined by the knowledge it assimilates; thus, the lower knowledge value that is absorbed, the weaker the soul (Suwito, 2012).

Islamic mysticism is so attractive to Javanese people because of its benefits. Besides conducting wirid activities to control the desires of worldly desires and preparing themselves to receive the kasyaf experience, it can also bring about supernatural powers to become a salik, a follower of the mystical path. To become a salik, a Muslim for the rest of his life must undergo discipline in carrying out outward sharia as well as discipline in living the inner sharia of Islam (Mawardi, 2006). Wirid is reading ayah taken from Al-Quran to be read in certain amount and generally given by a kiai to his students (Mawardi, 2006). Meanwhile, Kashaf or kasyaf is one of the karomah or advantages given by God to His beloved servants (Mawardi, 2006). This supernatural power in Javanese terminology is known as daya linuwih or sacred which refers to the ability to become strong and immune toward any weapons (Mawardi, 2006). In the end, what is so attractive to Javanese people in tarekat is to obtain daya linuwih (the ability of supernatural power). The ability of this power is tantalizing and becoming a pride for most Javanese people; therefore, tarekat is very popular among them. This aspect can be used as a reason why tarekat is rooted in the environment of inland Javanese society, in addition to the literacy stirred by the palace poets about Islamic mysticism through their predictions (Rubaidi, 2019).
Those are the concepts of Sufism that encourage Javanese Islamization. Hence, Sufism can be accepted and absorbed quickly into Javanese syncretism, as recorded in several suluk manuscripts (Nasrudin, 2021). Suluk is an activity of solitude for a while for worldly affairs (Mawardi, 2006). One example is the Dewa Ruci script which is the development form of the Nawaruci script talked about Hindu-Buddhist spiritual work during the Majapahit period. In the Nawaruci manuscript, various Sufi concepts were incorporated into the Dewa Ruci script, whose author was associated with Sunan Kalijaga. Moreover, the flexibility of Sufism teaching can be traced vividly in the process of Islamization of Java (Sunyoto, 2012). The doctrine of Sufism, which is flexible in accommodating various local values and traditions, is represented by Tarekat Akmaliah in Java. This tarekat is associated with several saints such as Sheikh Siti Jenar, Sunan Gunung Jati, Sunan Giri, and Sunan Kalijaga (Sunyoto, 2012).

Tarekat that is close to the concept of syncretism in this study is Tarekat Rinjani, a local tarekat based in Besuki village, Lumbir, Banyumas, Central Java. This tarekat encourages the members to be closer to Allah through wirid, dhikr, suluk, and wingit (a pilgrimage or journey to visit some areas considered sacred by rural Javanese), such as Nusakambangan in Cilacap and Mount Tidar in Magelang. Accordingly, the researcher was highly interested in studying the teachings of Tarekat Rinjani and sought the spiritual and physical practices of Tarekat Rinjani. This research contributes significantly to the development of Islamic studies, which is expected to give new knowledge and perception about Islamic mysticism.
B. Research Methods

This paper aims to describe Tarekat Rinjani teachings and to reveal laku batiniyah and lahiriyah (spiritual and physical practices) in Tarekat Rinjani. To achieve the objectives of the study, cultural anthropology research was conducted to reveal cultural phenomena, the meanings that are arranged from symbols, views of life, beliefs, interaction patterns, and ritual processions. The objects of this study are the spiritual and physical practices done by Tarekat Rinjani in Besuki Village, Banyumas known as laku kendalisada.

This study seeks to analyze how individuals and groups of tarekat in viewing and interpreting their daily lives. Participatory observation and interviews were used to collect the data. It means that the researchers directly involved themselves in the activities of Tarekat Rinjani, particularly in the suluk (visiting sacred places for the spiritual journey) ritual. The researchers employed field notes as the research instruments for three months and conducted interviews with informants related to the Tarekat Rinjani, including its practices and meanings that were needed for further explanation. The unstructured interview was used to collect the data to gain in-depth information. Also, notes and a recorder were used during the interview to maintain important information.

The collected data were then analyzed qualitatively using Miles and Huberman’s theory, namely data reduction, data display, and conclusion drawing or verification (Miles, 2014). Specifically, the data from observation and interview were analyzed and categorized, and the unrelated data were reduced. Subsequently, the data were displayed according to the objectives of the study. Finally, the conclusion of the study was generated based on the data analysis results.

C. Findings and Discussion

The results of the study show the description of Tarekat Rinjani’s teachings and expose the spiritual and physical practices of Tarekat Rinjani in Besuki village, Banyumas, Central Java. There are 13 teachings related to the spiritual aspect practices of Tarekat Rinjani. Meanwhile, in the aspect of physical practices, laku kendalisada is considered a philosophy of controlling the heart and mind.

1. Tarekat Rinjani and Its Order Teaching

Observational data portrayed the society’s environment and the Rinjani community’s daily activities in Besuki village. Besuki village is located on the slopes of the Pine Mountains, with most people farming rainfed (gogo), raising livestock, gardening, and some nomads as builders. The community has a lot of free time for the community to do other activities, particularly during the dry season, including trying to be closer to God by following tarekat activities.

The name of Rinjani is short for Rela Ilahi Nanggung Jawab Amanah Negara Indonesia, which means willing to be responsible for Indonesia sincerely for God’s sake. This tarekat was founded by a pious young man, Untung Waluyo, who interestingly did not want to be called an ustadz (Islamic teacher) or kiai (the leader of the Islamic boarding school or Pesantren) because he felt unworthy to bear the title. In his confession, he had never been a resident in a particular pesantren (boarding school), but he was always a nomad santri (Islamic student) who sought knowledge from various kiai and habib in the Banyumas area, which was known to have a lot of karomah (charism) and was a murshid or a spiritual guide of the tarekat. This result is shown in the following interview,

“I don’t want to be called kiai or ustadz, yes, because maybe I don’t feel like I deserve that yet. I also never became a permanent santri, just looking for knowledge of some kiai in Banyumas. [laughing] such as .. er .. Mbah Abu Hamid Beji, Mbah Malik bin Ilyas Dukuh Paruk, Habib Hamid Sokaraja and Mbah Abdullah or often referred to by the community as Mbah Darmo, a strict follower of the Malamatiah tarekat.” (Untung Waluyo, interview, May 18, 2018)

Tarekat Rinjani not only teaches wirid from the previous scholars but also has particular teaching formulated by the leader of this tarekat called Berlian Mas, which consist of the descriptions and directions of Prophet Khidr. According to the interview, Berlian Mas consists of 13 main teachings, which are abbreviations known in Banyumasan (Banyumas language) presented in the following table.

Based on the table above, the 13 teachings of Tarekat Rinjani manifest the stages of human life in reaching ma’rifat level by embracing nationalism as the first key of all the teachings. Ma’rifat is the peak of spiritual appreciation (Burckhardt, 1984). In the Javanese context, ma’rifat is referred to kasampurnan or sejatining urip, that is, the achievement of spiritual appreciation and the union between the servants and God through the spirituality of the mystical soul. Kasampurnan or ma’rifat can only be obtained by anyone personally through strictly forging themselves by eliminating bad character and traits and filling the soul with commendable qualities and traits. If the bad character has been replaced with good character, then a salik will be able to reach futuh, ma’rifat to Allah in which they can recognize and understand God through inner eyes without any cover impeding a salik towards the God. People who reach the stage of ma’rifat to Allah can master the occult knowledge (ladunniyah) seen as a group of khawas, saints of God (Simuh, 2019).

Since tarekat is a symbol of the spiritual journey to climb up the levels of spirituality or maqamat (Noer, 2003; Simuh, 2019), the 13 teachings of Tarekat Rinjani can be represented as the stages or steps to reach the final goals of the human spiritual journey. The journey starts from semen as the origin of human’s life, followed by the laku or practices that the human must undergo to reach the final goals of ma’rifat or sawarga in the last teaching of Tarekat Rinjani.

First, Kunci Negara Indonesia means that knowledgeable ulama (Islamic scholars) are the key to seeking knowledge to be close to God by remembering that Allah has given a country to the people of Indonesia as a home that is independent and democratic country with its prosperity and beauty nature. It is certainly a blessing to be given such a place as a home, especially for Tarekat Rinjani. The second teaching is Alam, an abbreviation of Asal Lahir Air Mani, which means that the human originated from semen, the lowliest entity of human life. This teaching aims to remind us that they are merely low beings that should not be arrogant toward others and God. The third teaching is Dunya: Dalan Usaha Nyinaoni Alam. Dunya means World in English and that the way to reach Allah's love is by learning from nature. It aims to suggest that every entity in this world is nothing but to remind us of Allah's Mercy and Grace.

The fourth teaching is Batu: Badan Alam Tiang Urip which means that the physical body of a human's life should be governed by hearth obtained from learning and modeling the ulama (Islamic scholars). Then, the fifth teaching is Bako: Bumi Alloh Kekuasaan Ora tanding means that there is no power greater than Allah. It aims to remind us that Allah is al-Malik, the Lord of the worlds. It is to admit that Allah is the Sovereign of the Universe, the only one to be worshiped. The sixth teaching is Bulus: Budi Luhur Sesama: Baik Ulama Luwes Ules Sampurna. This teaching taught that the member of the tarekat should do good toward others to be safe in the world and hereafter. Doing well here is by following the model and example of the Prophet Muhammad as well as Muslim scholars. This teaching also suggests that the purpose of human life is manunggal marang Allah, which is to unite with God.

The seventh teaching is Anggrem: Aku Nggolet Gaman Rino Enggal Mulia. This teaching taught that the purpose of human life is to admit the oneness of Allah by doing everything for Allah. It aims to remind the followers that everything should be done to seek Allah's mercy and blessing sincerely by always remembering Allah, following the scholars’ teaching, and doing good towards others. The eighth teaching, Berlian: Budi pekerti Eling Ridho Langsung Ilham Alloh Nanggulangi. Berlian means diamond in English, representing the world’s most beautiful and expensive jewelry. It refers to the central teaching of this tarekat that human has to embellish themselves with good moral and behavior spiritually as well as physically solely in order to get the blessing of Allah. This teaching corresponds with the ninth teaching, Mas: Mulia Allah Slamet. That is aimed to suggest that humans should do everything merely to seek blessing from Allah if they want to be safe in the world and hereafter.

The tenth teaching is Iman: Induk Mengenal Alloh Nitis, which is faith that there is nothing but Allah that should be worshiped. The eleventh teaching is Islam: Insap Slamet Laku Agama Migunani, which means that Islam is the way to reach Allah's love and be safe in the world and hereafter by always remembering and repenting toward Allah. The twelfth teaching, Aherat: Akhir Hidup Eling Ridho Alloh Tinulungan, is aimed to teach that the purpose of human life is not life in this world but the hereafter. It suggests that every aspect of human’s life and everything that we do in this world will be rewarded by Allah in the hereafter. This teaching will lead to the last teaching which is Suwarga: Suckses Uripe Wekasane Amale Rahmat Ganjarane Allah. Suwarga means heaven in English, which means that the ultimate goal of human’s life is to be awarded Allah’s love and heaven.
Based on the description above, Tarikat Rinjani teaches that to reach the final stage of ma’rifat, and one must go through 13 stages which can simply be seen in the following illustration:

The illustration shows that to reach ma’rifat or sawarga, the followers of Tarekat Rinjani must embrace the first teaching of this tarekat: to follow the teaching of Kiai and love their homeland or nationalism. This teaching is in accordance with Islamic mysticism (Jafari, 2020), which explains that those who want to become Islamic mystics must undergo rigorous training under the guidance of a mystic teacher.
2. Spiritual and physical practices of Tarekat Rinjani

Principally, ma’rifat to God is an obligation and personal love of a servant, through a series of physical or spiritual activities that strictly limit the desires and passions so as not to control themselves and fulfill themselves with all that is commendable. There are two practices of Tarekat Rinjani, including spiritual and physical practices known as Laku Kendalisada.

Kendalisada spiritual practice in Tarekat Rinjani begins with managing the heart and mind (nata ati pikiran) by renewing the faith of the tarekat members by saying two shahadah, the confession that Allah is the only God and Muhammad is the messenger of God. The confession is to remind them that the only thing to be worshiped and that can be dependent on by creatures is none other but Allah. New members of the tarekat need to be reminded of this; even though they are Muslims and acknowledge that Allah is the most powerful, human deeds and actions still show the opposite. This finding is as stated in the following interview,

“They must remember Allah is the greatest to make their heart is placed to Allah and their mind focus to Allah. Because sometimes, the Ego is still dominate and control over humans and make them arrogance, feeling the best, most high and noble compared to other humans. This attitude is one of the denial attitudes towards the oneness of God in all things. Therefore, re-awareness is needed for the tarekat members by repeating the two sentences of the shahada.” (Untung Waluyo, interview, May 18, 2018)
Kendalisada’s spiritual practice aims to get closer and get compassion from God by following the Berlian Mas teachings. The first step is to realize the position as a merely human being created from semen, the essence of the universe. The second step is to realize himself as a creature, and then humans must understand that the reason he was created is only to bow down to worship Allah. A salik (seeker) must carry out the Sharia that has been determined by God with the explanation from the Prophet. The third step is to eliminate the bad qualities and fulfilling the person with the praiseworthy qualities in interacting with all beings. The fourth step is always fulfilling the heart with the glory of God by constantly seeing and contemplating all His creations in this universe. In realizing this fourth step, salik should love and preserve the existence, wholeness, and diversity of the Republic of Indonesia as a form of glorifying God’s creation. In the last step, a salik must surrender to a desire for His love, regardless of His promises and threats, when the hearts have been filled with God’s majesty. This is the highest position of Kendalisada practices in the Tarekat Rinjani (interview with Mr. Untung).

The second Kendalisada’s spiritual practice is reciting dhikr and wirid to draw closer to Allah and gain His love. This practice is also similar to the spiritual practice of Tarekat Naqsabandiyah Khalidiyah in which one way to reach ma’rifat is by doing wirid continuously (Saliyo, 2018). The main recitation of dhikr practice by Tarekat Rinjani is dhikr fida or in Javanese known as dhikr pitung leksan. Dhikr fida is remembering Allah by reading the _kalimah tahlil_ (لا إله إلا الله: There is no God but Allah) seventy thousand times. The following interview result confirms this finding,

“This dhikr serves as a compensation for humans to be avoided from the grave torment, kept away from hellfire and gaining Allah’s love. Humans in their lives will never be able to avoid doing wrong either to fellow human beings, other creatures, the universe or violating the prohibition of Allah. God has warned that people who do evil will get torture, while people who do good and obey God’s commands will get His love and be kept away from the torments of hellfire. In order to avoid the threat and then get the God’s love, humans need to atone by reading the _kalimah tahlil_ seventy thousand times.” (Untung Waluyo, interview, May 18, 2018)

This explanation states the purpose of reciting dhikr and wirid as the second spiritual practice of Kendalisada that need to be implemented by the community of Tarekat Rinjani. Dhikr fida following the provisions of the tarekat is carried out at the house of the tarekat leaders on minggu legi (Sunday legi-one of the Javanese days) every month. In addition, it is also permissible to be done together with other activities such as circumcision, marriage, and funeral ceremony when there are tarekat members who wish to bring about (ngunduh) these activities to their homes.

According to the observation, this activity was started by collecting seventy thousand pebbles to be used by the tarekat member to count the _kalimah tahlil_ that must be read. These pebbles will be distributed equally to all the members. This activity begins with tawassul (a means through which to reach a certain goal) to the Messenger of Allah and his family, tawassul to angels, prophets, and pious people, one of them to Sheikh Abdul Qadir al-Jilani, tawassul for the integrity of the Republic of Indonesia, tawassul for all family members who have died from the tarekat, which had previously been recorded and given to the tarekat leader. Then, surah al-Fatihah in the Qur’an is also recited at the last session in each tawassul part. Tahlil recitation begins with a low voice, then flat but jahr, then louder, fast, and rising at the end of the dhikr fida. Dhikr fida ends with a very long prayer by the leader of the tarekat. In addition to dhikr fida, the tarekat members are also equipped with several wirid recitations which must be practiced every day.

Spiritual practices of Tarekat Rinjani include managing the heart and mind and reciting dhikr and wirid continuously. According to Saliyo (2018), the practice of spiritual and religious rituals can help to unite the body, mind, and spirit and can be beneficial for a person working at either physical or physiological development.

Meanwhile, Kendalisada’s physical practices include, first, loving the Republic of Indonesia by flying the Red and White flag along with the NU flag in every moment of national or Islamic holidays. Second, helping others regardless of religion, group, and race, such as a tradition of gathering or visiting other tarekat members every week. Third, making a spiritual journey by visiting various places that are considered to have high karomah (wigit), including tombs of Islamic custodians and pious people around Central Java, such as the Nusakambangan area known as the Wingit area and Mount Tidar as a magical gathering place for Muslim spiritual figures and Javanese spiritual leaders. In this kind of spiritual journey, there is a contact between local tarekat and groups of mysticism practitioners or kejawen. During the visit, the members are expected to always remember Allah (dhikrullah) and to be grateful for seeing all the appearances of the universe (kauniyah verses). The teachings of this tarekat are more inspired by the phenomena of the universe, both materials and living things. These teachings were spoken by the leader of the tarekat which is then widely recorded and written by its members using Latin letters in the Javanese using Banyumas dialect. The teachings originated from the ability to capture God’s presence in the phenomenon of the universe and have made the tarekat members love their homeland, Indonesia. In every chanting of their prayers, they always pray for the integrity and existence of the Republic of Indonesia.

Based on laku tarekat or the tariqa practice, a salik must undertake it by doing mujahadah, a spiritual reflection (via purgative way) and doing practical practices (via contemplative way). The first practice is a philosophical reflection, to cleanse the heart from other than God by understanding the position of the self, mastering the passions, and filling oneself with noble morals. This tarekat does not dismiss the significance of Sharia. Similarly, Faturahman (2002) believes that there is no conflict between tasawwuf and Sharia teachings.
The second practice is a practical activity used to concentrate the mind solely on Allah by doing dhikr, chanting the name of Allah repeatedly with various methods and techniques to direct the overall consciousness of a salik to be able to see the beauty of God’s face. In the consensus of Islamic mysticism, philosophical contemplation is only done by elite groups or khawasul khawas, while pragmatic practices can be introduced to guide ordinary Muslims to try to draw closer to God with strict wirid exercises (Simuh, 2019). In addition, (Bruinessen, 2018) explains that tasawwuf and psychology have a similar practice in which both originate from nafs as living and eternal creatures yearning to remain holy and seek the ultimate knowledge, which is capable of controlling the human body.

The last one has been developing on the Independence Day of Indonesia, which is called the contemporary period until today. The tarekat people have built a community system variously based on the principle of beliefs and various ritual activities. The tarekat people always develop, modify, and actualize the tasawwuf teachings and the tarekat practice, mainly to complete the society’s spirituality and morality improvement.

Reviewing the result of the study in accordance with the teachings of Tarekat Rinjani through spiritual and physical practices, it is identified that Tarekat Rinjani is not a mu’tabarah tarekat like other large tarekat organization which has long been developed and well-established in Indonesia. The standard of mu’tabarah is to have muttasil (cohesive/connected) sanad to the Prophet Muhammad.
Dhikr and wirid are taught directly by the Prophet through his closer people, the Mu’tabarah tarekat must be shown by the lineage of the tarekat teacher to prove that the dhikr and wirid come from the Prophet Muhammad directly. Although the sanad of tarekat Rinjani is not muttashil until the Messenger of Allah, this does not mean that this tarekat is a splinter flow out of Islamic Sharia, the procedures for adherence, dhikr and wirid closely resemble Tarekat Qadiriyah and Khalwatiyah which are considered mu’tabarah by the Nahdlatul Ulama’s tarekat organization. In contrast to the Tarekat Rinjani, Istadiyantha (2020) describes tarekat that are often considered misguided, such as in his research on Tarekat Syattariyah, which is considered deviate by the public, but on the other hand, there is an assumption that these teachings are following Islamic law.

In line with this, Abdurahman (2018) claims that tarekat followers constantly create, adapt, and realize tasawwuf teachings and tarekat practice, primarily to complete the spiritual and moral betterment of society. Besides, Sila (2009) argues that several tarekats have recently appeared in Indonesian metropolitan areas, demonstrating that tarekats continue to serve as a vehicle of social and cultural connection. One of them is Tarekat Kadisiyyah, located in central Bandung, West Java which is also opposed to mu’tabar tarekat.

Local congregations such as Tarekat Rinjani have a local nuance. There are some syncretic teachings and practices that intersect with mysticism. Thus, local tarekat are often suspected as deviant because they do not have clear and convincing sanad. Unclear sanad (genealogy) and syncretic teachings cause local tarekat to be classified as ghairu mu’tabarah (unorthodox) tarekat (Bruinessen, 2019). This condition has caused many orthodox Muslim organizations and scholars to forbid Muslims from following these local congregations. This local tarekat seems as the previous tarekat in Indonesia that Abdurahman (2018) has already described, who maintains that the tarekat communities in Indonesia in the early period of Islam, that is, the 13th until 17th century have established the spiritual system patterned on the diversity of doctrine, idea, and subculture that is acculturative with various cultures of the neighborhood society in Indonesia.

In the historical context, local congregations have a distinctive style of loving the motherland and rejecting colonialism or anti-colonialism, such as the Tarekat Akmaliah which is growing rapidly in Banyumas. As referred to in Dutch intelligence reports, the Akmaliah congregation in Banyumas often conducts anti-colonial agitations (Bruinessen, 2019). The Akmaliah tarekat movement led by Kiai Nurhakim is categorized as the Ratu Adil movement, a movement that hopes for the emergence of Imam Mahdi, who will eliminate colonialism and uphold Islamic law. The anti-colonial movement of the Tarekat Akmaliah received the support of many followers because the tarekat leaders put forward supernatural abilities that were mystical and supernatural (Van Bruinessen, 2013).
Tarekat Akmaliyah has many supporters for some reasons; first, the teachings and practices of this tarekat are typically Javanese by providing the members with tolak balak, jampi-jampi, and rajah compiled in a primbon (kind of horoscope book consist of some spells). It also provides jimat (talisman) for various purposes, including immunity and others. Secondly, around 1888-1890, much social unrest arose in Banyumas’ residency because the Dutch colonial government imposed the sugar cane plantation system. In this condition, people longed for protectors who were considered capable of saving them from threatening situations. Thus, Kiai Nurhakim, as a free cleric, became a patron (Steenbrink, 1993).

Another distinctive feature of local tarekat is their willingness to always mingle with the cultural conditions and traditions. Local tarekat wants to accommodate groups that are categorized as abangan to join the tarekat community slowly. It is hoped that the two groups considered Islamic and less Islamic will unite as an ummah. This integration is usually accelerated by a sense of joint saturation towards socio-political conditions, avoiding the hustle and bustle of politics that drains energy towards mind activities, a Sufistic attitude (Bruinessen, 2019).

In line with Bruinessen’s opinion that local tarekat has a typology of loving the motherland and accommodating abangan groups and its culture, Tarekat Rinjani in Lumbir also has the same typology. One of the spiritual practices in Berlian Mas that must be done by a salik to get love from God is to love the motherland and the Republic of Indonesia. The implication of this inner practice is manifested in the use of Red and White flag of the Republic of Indonesia and the slogan of “NKRI harga mati” (Unitary State of the Republic of Indonesia is Undisputed) in every document. Another thing is the obligation of this tarekat to read certain wirid on the independence anniversary of the Republic of Indonesia every August 17, including raising the Red and White flag with the Nahdlatul Ulama flag. This may be affected by the history that in the early 20th century, the social power of the tarekat people became an indicator of religion resurgence, which had a significant impact on Indonesia’s nationalistic movement (Abdurahman, 2018).

Tarekat Rinjani is also committed to accepting everyone to join the congregation. Several leaders and members of the Pemuda Pancasila (Pancasila Youth) organization joined the tarekat because of the common goal of maintaining the integrity of the Republic of Indonesia. A group of mystical practitioners joined this tarekat because of their similar views on the microcosm concept and practices, such as penance and meditation in sacred places (wingit). One of the dominant factors of this congregational solidarity is that the leader of the tarekat is a cleric who is not formally affiliated with any Islamic organization, and it is the custom of the tarekat leader to always visit the members.
D. Conclusion

Sufism-syncretic is a term to describe Tarekat Rinjani. Similar to other local congregations in Java, this tarekat has a distinctive typology of having a high sense of nationalism and accommodating groups of people labeled as abangan along with its traditions and culture. The character of nationalism and the willingness to dialogue with the abangan group of Terakat Rinjani is based on Berlian Mas’s teachings, very distinctive teaching in Javanese Banyumasan.

Berlian Mas teachings form the basis for Tarekat Rinjani members in undergoing themselves as a salik to reach God’s love. The path that must be taken by a salik is called laku (practices) including spiritual and physical practices known as laku Kendalisada. Kendalisada’s spiritual practice begins by managing hearts and minds that aim to reach the love of God by maintaining the integrity of the Republic of Indonesia and by reading dhikr and wirid. Meanwhile, Kendalisada’s physical practices were pursued in three ways: loving NKRI by always flying the Red and White flag along with the NU flag on the Independence Day of the Republic of Indonesia, helping others regardless of religion, group, or class, and making the spiritual journey in various places that are considered having high karomah (wingit).
